* It's extremely helpful to go to the individual websites of university medical centers, research institutes, or private pharma/biotech/health companies in the area where you want to live. If you aren't sure do a Google search like "Washington DC Healthcare Consulting Companies" and see what comes up. This will make things a lot more manageable!

* Every industry has a national association and their websites are full of excellent information. Again, just do a Google search for what you're interested in like "Association of Public Health."
